

USAGE OF THE CHINESE CHARACTER OF "HUANGPU"

Since the Chinese pronunciation of the word "Huangpu" is identical to that of Shanghai's district "Huangpu" but they are two completely different Chinese characters, we feel obliged to provide our customers and partners with a thorough explanation of the differences between the two characters.

EXPLANATION

Chinese Character for (Guangzhou) Huangpu:

黄埔

Chinese Character for (Shanghai) Huangpu:

黄浦

The characters in each word differ only in their last characters, which are quite similar.

A radical for "Earth" appears on the left side of the Chinese character for "Guangzhou Huangpu", whereas a radical for "Water" appears on the left side of the Chinese character for "Shanghai Huangpu".

A mnemonic for remembering the difference is:

- Huangpu in Guangzhou has earth under its feet, it is a very solid place, and the people there are very down-to-earth.
- In Shanghai, the Huangpu River runs through the city, so the water radical represents that river

Of course, for any further questions regarding to the correct usage of the name of "Huangpu", you could always ask our team for help.

CONTACT

XI YANG

MARKETING
COMMUNICATION MANAGER

Language: Mandarin, German, English

Tel: +49 (0) 173 54 65 241

E-Mail: xiyang@huangpu-europe.com